

IS&T Copyright Agreement Information

IS&T's publications are read throughout the world, and we must respond to requests for reprinting, republishing, redistributing, digitizing, posting to servers, translating, anthologizing, and other actions. It is the policy of IS&T to own the copyright on its technical publications to protect the interests of you as an author, your co-authors, you or your companies employees, and IS&T—and at the same time to facilitate the appropriate reuse of this material by others.

United States Copyright Law requires that the transfer of copyright of each contribution from the Author to IS&T be confirmed in writing. IS&T offers four (4) copyright options:

- standard copyright transfer to IS&T
- US Government Employee Consent to Publish
- Crown or other Government Employee Consent to Publish (non-US)
- Creative Commons (CC) options

Authors MUST sign ONE (1) of the Copyright/Consent to Publish Agreements and return it with the manuscript to the address on the form. DO NOT sign all four (4) forms.

If you are employed and you prepared your paper as part of your job, the rights to your paper may initially rest with your employer. In that case, we expect that the IS&T Copyright Transfer Form will be signed by someone appropriately authorized by your employer. This may be the author, but sometimes it is a person in the legal department.

For jointly authored papers, an original signature is required from one (generally the lead) author only. However, all authors must be advised and consent to the terms of this form.

Authors who are US government employees and/or whose papers are not copyrightable as part of certain Government contract work, are not required to sign Part A, but all co-authors outside the Government contract are.

Part B of the Form is to be used instead of Part A only if any or all authors are US Government employees and they prepared the paper as part of their job, or the work is an un-copyrightable product of a Government contract.

IS&T authors have all the rights scientific authors have historically enjoyed, including to right to:

- present orally the submitted or similar material in any form;
- to reuse in future works of the authors' own with notice and credit to IS&T (meaning you should cite your own paper as you cite other works);
- republish in any form of media with proper notice and credit to your IS&T publication, in works published by the employer, for the employer's internal business purposes;
- reproduce and distribute for peer review in reasonable quantities; and
- all proprietary rights other than copyright.

See copyright form for details

Although it is not part of IS&T's policy to grant authors or their organizations the sole right to approve permissions for republishing by third parties, IS&T always seeks the approval of its authors, for jointly authored papers the first-named (assumed lead) author only, in weighing such requests. This is done as a matter of professional courtesy.
